What is a Performance Model?

The Performance Model is a tool used to determine the fit between a candidate and a given position. The Model takes into account the abilities and perspectives that correspond to a good job fit and provides the ranges of various measures that are predictive of success in the position. An individual's assessment results can then be compared to the Model to gauge the fit between the person and the position.

The Model consists of a range of scores for the Thinking Style and Behavioral Traits scales where most of the successful performers in this position tend to fall. The farther outside this range (Performance Model) an individual's scores fall, the less likely the individual will fit the role.

Interests for the Performance Model are based on the interests identified by those most successful in the position. The greater the degree of alignment between the individual's top three interests and the top three in the Performance Model, the more likely he or she is to find the job activities motivating and enjoyable, which could potentially keep him or her more engaged in the position.

Performance Model

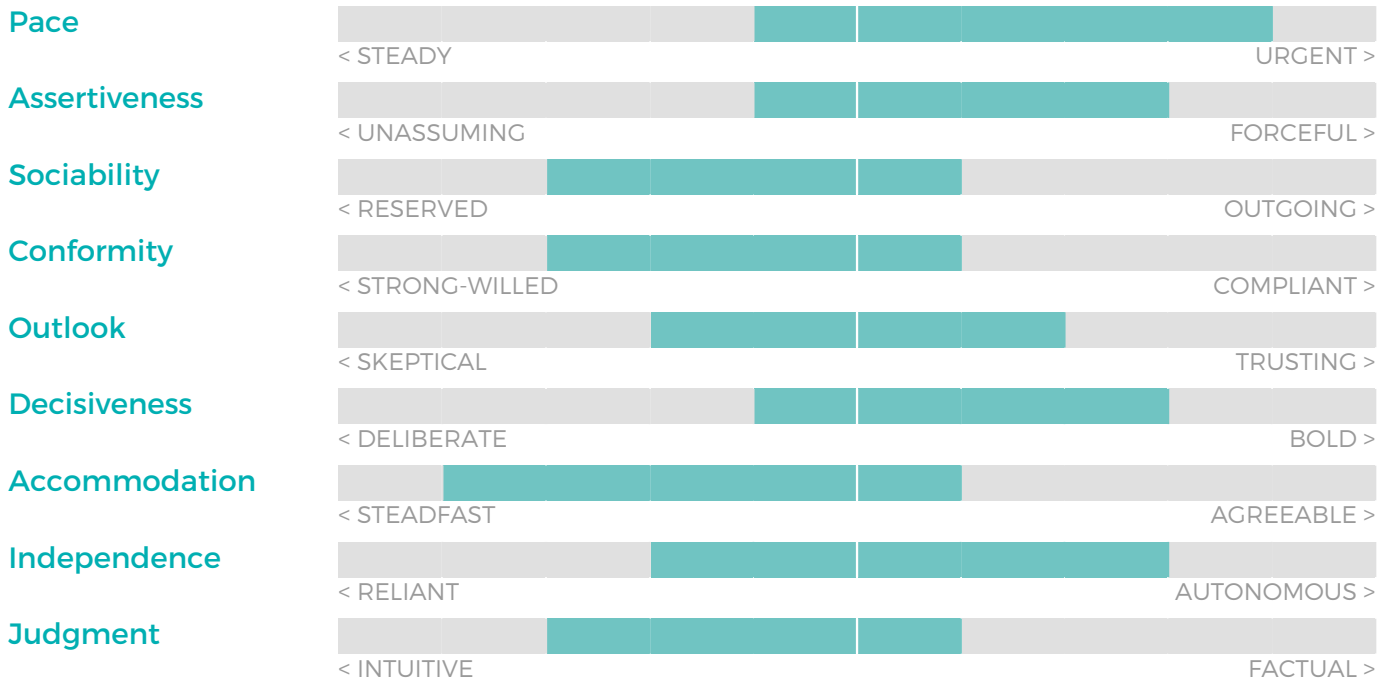

For Managers

THINKING STYLE

A primary resource for learning is the ability to process information from one's environment. In most training situations, this information is in the form of either words or numbers. Each of the following scales measures an aspect of understanding words or numbers and using each as part of the reasoning process. They form the foundation for problem solving, communication, interaction, and learning skills used on the job.

Composite Score

A reflection of overall learning, reasoning, and problem-solving potential

Ideal Candidate: Assimilates information with minimal confusion and can handle more complex information processing.

Verbal Skill

A measure of vocabulary

Ideal Candidate: Can process fairly complex language and has a vocabulary in the above average range.

Verbal Reasoning

Using words for reasoning and problem solving

Ideal Candidate: Capable of analyzing and understanding the nuances contained in complex communication.

Numerical Ability

A measure of numerical calculation ability

Ideal Candidate: Proficient with basic numerical equations and is fairly comfortable with complex calculations.

Numeric Reasoning

Using numbers as a basis in reasoning and problem solving

Ideal Candidate: Reasonably efficient when using numerical data in decision making and requires little assistance in processing charts and graphs.

BEHAVIORAL TRAITS

Behavioral Traits help define who we are by influencing our behaviors. As our strengths and the combinations of our behavioral traits vary, so do our behaviors. The following are some of the traits that have been shown to be important in work settings.

Pace

Overall rate of task completion

Ideal Candidate: Responds well to time constraints and generally works at a brisk pace.

Assertiveness

Expression of opinions and need for control

Ideal Candidate: Enjoys influencing others but is still willing to follow direction from someone else when necessary.

Sociability

Desire for interaction with others

Ideal Candidate: Comfortable working alone, but willing to collaborate as part of a team when necessary.

Conformity

Attitude on policies and supervision

Ideal Candidate: Effective without direct management, yet welcomes some structure and supervision as needed.

Outlook

Anticipation of outcomes and motives

Ideal Candidate: Demonstrates a generally positive attitude, yet will express doubt on occasion.

Decisiveness

Use of speed and caution to make decisions

Ideal Candidate: Balances timeliness and deliberation, but is comfortable making quick decisions when necessary.

Accommodation

Inclination to tend to others' needs and ideas

Ideal Candidate: Responds appropriately to the needs of others but strongly defends his or her opinions.

Independence

Level of preference for instruction and guidance

Ideal Candidate: Moderately independent yet can accept necessary guidance and instruction.

Judgment

Basis for forming opinions and making decisions

Ideal Candidate: Uses judgment that balances common sense and practical experience.

INTERESTS

The Interests section may indicate an individual's motivation and potential satisfaction with various positions. The top three interests for this model, based on the interests of people who have been most successful in this position, are listed below in descending order.

1 - TECHNICAL

A Technical interest suggests the enjoyment of learning technical material, interpreting complex information, and solving abstract problems. Individuals with this interest may enjoy working with numbers, data, and/or computer programs.

2 - PEOPLE SERVICE

A People Service interest suggests the enjoyment of collaboration, compromise, and helping others. It may indicate a strong sense of empathy and support and a knack for bringing people together.

3 - ENTERPRISING

An Enterprising interest suggests the enjoyment of leadership, presenting ideas, and persuading others. Individuals with this interest may desire responsibility and exercise initiative, ambition, and resourcefulness.

Ideal Candidate: Appreciates an analytically oriented work setting and opportunities to practice the art of persuasion. This individual may be drawn into situations in which he or she can help people in an advisory capacity.
